The fundamental rationale for a comprehensive treatment approach is a long-term strategy for dental health commensurate with an enhanced level of wellness for our patients. Understanding parameters of disease expression is sometimes confused because of misguided science or parameters that have led to patient adaptation. Formulating specific treatment needs based on an individual’s risk assessment has created new challenges for both the dentist and the patient. Until we have more objective data with better metrics, much of our clinical decision making will remain emotionally driven and empirical. This reliance, in turn, will make us more vulnerable to moral and ethical deliberations that are often confused with our inability to make a proper diagnosis. This program will reduce the confusion that has been created in our profession.

Lecture participants will learn:

- A systematic approach for treatment planning every patient in their practice.
- To focus on the four most important diagnostic categories.
- To develop critical risk parameters to minimize failures and maximize successful results.
- Protocols to implement treatment planning strategies.

In addition, this program will underscore the impact and importance of staff roles, both in patient care and in the delivery of treatment, thereby making the entire dental team more effective.

Dr. Kois’ program is perfect for doctors and staff who enjoy learning how to make complex things simpler and want to get involved in providing more comprehensive care for their patients.
